FOUR FRUITLESS BALLOTS TAKEN FOR NEW POPE

VOTING MAY CONTINUE AT VATICAN TODAY; TWO BALLOTS SATURDAY.

ROME, Feb. 4.—Two days of fruitless voting for a new pope, during which the conclave of cardinals in the sealed up Vatican took four resultless ballots indicated tonight that the deadlock might not be broken and that compromise candidate was virtually certain.

Twice today the watchers on the house tops and roofs of buildings near the Vatican and the tense crowds in the great square of St. Peter's saw columns of black smoke roll from the chimney of the Sistine chapel, where the election is being conducted. Black smoke is the emblem of no election. If it had been white, the populace would have known a new pontiff of the Roman church had been chosen.

The fifth ballot will be taken Sunday morning unless the immured cardinals have agreed otherwise. It is customary to continue the balloting over Sunday when conclave conditions are such as present themselves at present, so it was supposed tonight that two more ballots will be taken tomorrow, just as they were taken today and Friday.

When the day passed without a selection, hope was revived among the Americans in Rome that Cardinal O'Connell of Boston would arrive in time to cast his ballot for the pope. The liner Presidente Wilson, upon which the American cardinal is traveling, is meeting with heavy weather in the Meriterranean, but her captain reported by wireless this afternoon that he hoped to reach Naples Monday morning.

By dusk this evening the waiting, watching crowds had dispersed leaving only a few foreign pilgrims and sight-seers in the Piazza of St. Peter's. There was no way in which the populace could satisfy its curiosity. It is traditional that no information comes from the walled up Sistine chapel where the conclave is under way. Any speculation appearing in the press is taken at its face value, which is not much.

It is not even known what names have been voted upon for pope. Gossip among the Catholic colleges mentioned nearly half the Italian cardinals as "papal possibilities," with Cardinal Maffi, Cardinal Lualdi, Cardinal Laurenti and Cardinal LaFontaine the favorites.

RESIGNATION ITALIAN CABINET WON'T EFFECT GENOA CONFERENCE

ROME, Feb. 4.—Anxiety over the fate of the Genoa economic conference, aroused throughout Europe by the collapse of the Bonomi cabinet, was set at rest tonight by official assurances transmitted to the world by the Italian foreign office through the International News Service.

"The impression apparently has been created outside of Italy that the resignation of Premier Bonomi and his ministry will affect the proposed economic conference at Genoa," said the foreign office statement. "That is entirely incorrect. There is no connection between the two matters whatsoever.

"Leaders in the chamber of deputies are in favor of the Genoa conference. They want it to be held. They realize its benefits. Any fabian tactics regarding the conference will not come from the hosts (the Italian government). If there is any postponement, it is believed the guests declined to come. Italy, of course, cannot discuss the subject of the conference with powers, until a new government is formed here."

The conference is scheduled to open on March 8, giving more than a month for final preparations.

CONFERENCE TODAY ADJOURNS TO LAST MEETING ON MONDAY

CONTINENTAL HALL, WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—After the longest session yet held, and which saw the completion of three months work, the Washington conference adjourned at 2:35 o'clock this afternoon until Monday.

On Monday the treaties will be signed and President Harding will address the conference at a final session.

Secretary of State Hughes brought today's hectic session to a close with a speech in which he expressed his "profound thanks and appreciation" for the co-operation of his colleagues in bringing to a "successful conclusion" the most important task ever undertaken in behalf of world peace and concord among nations.

FORMER PREMIER OF ITALY REQUESTED TO FORM A NEW CABINET

ROME, Feb. 4.—King Victor Emmanuel, upon recommendation of Tomasso Tittoni, president fo the senate, and Enrico De Nicola, president of the chamber of deputies, has requested former Premier Bonomi to form a new cabinet, but Signor Bonomi declined, according to the newspaper Il Mesagero today.

The cabinet crisis, which was precipitated Thursday when the Bonomi cabinet resigned as the result of parliamentary attacks, continued today.

Signor Giolliti was offered the premiership but declined on account of advanced age. When Signor Giolliti's refusal became known, it was anticipated that Signor De Nicola would undertake the formation of a new ministry some time today.

The socialist leaders held a caucus at which they adopted a resolution calling upon the new cabinet "to make every effort to carry out the Genoa conference despite attempts by imperialistic and nationalistic powers to sabotage it."

It is believed that the socialist resolution makes it certain that the ministry will support the conomic conference. While the socialists are receiving opposition from the popular party, they are supported by labor.

PREMIER STEPS IN TO PREVENT ARMED CLASH IN IRELAND

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Premier Lloyd George tonight stepped in to avert a new threatened armed clash in Ireland.

Following afternoon reports of threatened or impending movement of Ulster volunteers to the southern boundary, the premier, according to the Sunday Express, had invited both Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, and Michael Collins, Irish Free State leader, to London for a conference over the crisis arising from the proposed revision of the Ulster frontier line.

INFLUENZA ON INCREASE IN NEW YORK SATURDAY

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—The influenza scourge in this city today reached the highest point since the epidemic of fours years ago when 1,297 cases were reported for the 24 hours ending this noon, compared to 1122 yesterday. Pneumonia was almost on the increase, 222 cases being reported today compared with 206 yesterday. There were 72 deaths from pneumonia and fifteen from influenza during the 24 hour period.

INQUEST INTO DEATH OF MOVIE DIRECTOR ENDS ABRUPTLY WHILE DETECTIVES SCURRY FORTH AGAIN

Relentless Search Is Being Conducted for Sand, Former Valet and Secretary to Murdered Man, Who Is Alleged to Have Threatened Him—Mabel Normand and Others on Stand Tell of Last Seeing Taylor—Head of Detectives Claims to Have Line on Guilty Party.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4.—New and important evidence gathered late this afternoon by detectives was followed immediately by the launching of a relentless search for Edward F. Sands, former valet of William Desmond Taylor, noted Los Angeles motion picture director, found murdered Thursday morning in his bungalow home here.

That Sands is known positively to be in Los Angeles and that he is regarded as one of the most important witnesses in the probe, were statements made tonight by police investigators.

Every available officer of the police department, and experienced man hunters of the sheriff's office were detailed to the search. Sheriff William I. Traeger assigned Deputy Sheriffs Fox and Joe Nolan, noteworthy crime experts, to aid the police in locating the former valet of the slain film director.

It was said tonight the police have under surveillance one of the most prominent actors of the Hollywood motion picture colony. They are reported to be investigating his movements on the night of the murder. This actor, who also has directed several pictures, recently is said to have had a bitter quarrel with Taylor due to jealousy over a beautiful motion picture actress.

Officers working on this angle of the mystery would not reveal the actor's name. They said if he made any effort to leave the city his detention would follow.

Inquest Ends Dramatically.

An inquest into the death of Taylor, held at a local mortuary today, was concluded with all dramatic suddenness, much to the surprise of the crowd of morbidly curious people who had gathered to hear the testimony of a number of film stars widely known to "movie fans."

There were only five witnesses questioned, one of these being Mabel Normand. The jury returned a verdict that Taylor was killed "by a gunshot wound inflicted by a person, or persons, unknown to this jury, with intent to kill, or commit murder."

The police late tonight admitted that the hurried departure of detectives from the inquest chamber this afternoon was for the purpose of locating "Dapper Dan" Collins, an alleged gunman who was reported to have been in the vicinity of the Taylor home the night of the slaying. They did not find Collins, however.

Reporters were not to learn the destination of the detectives, as great secrecy was observed.

The police and Coroner Nance evidently took great care that only known facts in the case would be placed before the jury to enable it to return a stilted and formal verdict that Taylor had been killed by an unknown assassin. The room in which the inquest was held was crowded to the doors. Many who were unable to gain admittance stood about in the street in order to gain a glimpse of famous film actors and actresses. There was a hush of expectation when Coroner Nance called the name of Mabel Normand as a witness.

The attractive picture star appeared calm as she walked to the witness chair and formally gave her name.

"I saw Mr. Taylor at his home on Wednesday evening," she stated. "I called at 7 o'clock that evening and left at about 7:45 o'clock.

"Mr. Taylor escorted me to my automobile at the curb and we chatted a moment. After the car started away and as it was turning around, I turned and waved my hand at him. He was standing on the sidewalk."

Miss Normand was asked who was present at the Taylor residence during the visit. She replied that the only person there besides herself and the slain man was Henry Peavey, the colored servant.

"He left the house within five or fifteen minutes before I did," said Miss Normand, referring to Peavey.

SHANTUNG TREATY IS SIGNED SATURDAY BY JAPANESE AND CHINKS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The treaty between Japan and China, providing for the return to China of the former German leased territory in Shantung, was signed by the Chinese and Japanese delegates late today, thereby bringing to an end one of the most difficult problems of the Far East.

Under the terms of the pact, the former German territory of Kiaochow held by Japan since the Germans were ousted at the beginning of the world war, goes back to China immediately.

The Shantung railway, about which there has been the greatest controversy, is to be returned to China, but Japan is to retain a decree of supervision until China has paid an indemnity of approximately 53,000,000 gold marks.

TWO TREATIES ADOPTED BY 9 WORLD POWERS

CONFERENCE CLOSES WITH GREAT BURST OF SPEED SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

WASHINGTON Feb. 4.—Coming down the home stretch with a final burst of speed, the arms conference, ably piloted by Secretary of State Hughes, this afternoon crossed the finish line with a flourish of oratory which brought enthusiastic applause from the delegates and demonstrations from such of the audience as had not been driven from their seats by hunger.

The outstanding work of the day's session was the adoption of the long awaited nine-power treaty respecting China. It pledges the powers to strict observance of the open door and puts them on record as guaranteeing that they will not violate the territorial, political or administrative integrity of China. It scraps the time honored policy of "spheres of influence" in China, which has been a prolific source of international misunderstanding in the past.

In addition to this important accomplishment, the conference adopted a nine-power tariff treaty, designed to aid in the rehabilitation of China by giving her an adequate customs tariff, and it approved a supplement to the so-called four power pacific pact, definitely exempting the homeland of Japan from the operations of that treaty. Besides these treaties, the conference adopted approximately half a dozen resolutions calculated to clear up tagends of misunderstandings in the Far East and to improve the future relations of the participating powers.

Two new records were hung up in today's session—one for time, the other for accomplishment. Starting at 10:40 a. m. the conference breezed steadily through a mass of work until 2:36 p. m. when Chairman Hughes announced an adjournment until 10 o'clock Monday morning, when the delegates will meet once more to go through the formality of signing the numerous treaties which the conference has produced.

When the final resolution had been adopted unanimously by the conference and Secretary Hughes had moved that the minutes of the secretariat-general be declared closed, thus marking the virtual end of the conference, there followed a period of speech-making in which the heads of the various delegations paid tribute to the conference, to the American delegation and to the American people.

POMERENE FROM OHIO TALKED OF FOR PRESIDENT

APPROACH OF SPRING IS STARTING CAMPAIGN TALK IN CAPITAL.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The grand old game of politics in the national capital may some times doze a bit, but it never sleeps. And even in its fitful dozing it keeps one eye open and to the windward.

Ever since the Republican avalanche of 1920 swept the Democratic administration—both national and state—in the discard, things have been slumbering, politically speaking.

Now, with the approach of spring, and notwithstanding that Warren G. Harding has been in the White House less than a year, and has three more years to go, the political robins of the 1924 campaign are already bestirring themselves and chirping about on the greensward of Capitol Hill.

Democratic quietude should not be taken for Democratic stagnation. The Democrats of Capitol Hill honestly believe they have an excellent chance to capture the House of Representatives next fall, and cut down the Republican majority in the Senate to almost nothing.

The more optimistic believe they can win the Senate, too, but the more conservative content themselves with claiming the House.

The first whisperings concerning a Democratic candidate for 1924 are now going the rounds of Capitol Hill, and they center about Atles Pomerene, present senior senator from the president's own state of Ohio, who is to come up for re-election next November.

The preliminary groundwork for Pomerene's candidacy already has been laid. His managers have gone just as far as possible until it is seen whether the senior senator from Ohio is coming back to the Senate next fall. If he does not come back, has candidacy, of course, dies aborning; but if he does come back, then the Pomerene campaign is going to be launched in earnest.

OPEN WARFARE ON BETWEEN STRIKERS AND STATE TROOPS

NEWPORT, Ky., Feb. 4.—Open warfare was begun tonight between the Kentucky state guards in Newport and strikers and sympathizers who have been at war with the men hired to replace them since the plant of the Newport Rolling Mills went on an open shop basis several months ago.

The first real clash between the state military forces and the strikers took place on North street, between Brighton and Pabella streets. Scores of shots were fired and five persons were seriously wounded.

Twelve men, employed at the mill, were proceeding in a body to their homes when they met strikers and sympathizers said to have numbered between 300 and 400 men, women and children.

The larger body is said to have attacked the non-union workers, while women and children hurled stones.

Kentucky guardsmen were summoned and according to a report made by Captain L. V. Crockett, in command of the tank corps, the strikers opened fire upon guardsmen and volley after volley were fired. Shortly afterwards more soldiers arrived on the scene and the mob was driven back with clubbed rifles.

AGRICULTURAL BLOC SAID TO BE SOLIDLY BACK OF FORD OFFER.

HEARINGS ON OFFER MAY START WITHIN 2 WEEKS, IS PREDICTION

"Solid South" Expected to Support Measure in Both Senate and House.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The Senate "agricultural bloc" will open its battle Monday for immediate acceptance of Henry Ford's offer to lease Muscle Shoals, it was learned tonight.

A resolution calling upon the Senate to immediately consider the offer will be introduced Monday by Senator Harris (D.) of Georgia.

Senator Harris will ask that the offer, now in contract form, be sent to the agricultural committee.

The Ford contract, submitted to Congress by Secretary of War Weeks, was sent to the House of Representatives, and the Senate ordinarily would have to await House action before taking it under consideration. Under the Harris motion, the Senate act at once upon the contract.

"I will move that the Senate consider Ford's offer at once," said Harris tonight. "Contrary to custom, Ford's contract was sent to the House, and under the circumstances the Senate has nothing to act upon. I will urge that my motion be adopted and the agricultural committee requested to investigate and report upon the contract at once."

The Harris motion will precipitate concurrent hearings on the offer in both the Senate and House. It will reflect the sentiment of the "agricultural bloc," which is united behind the offer. The "bloc," it was indicated, will demand early action from both sides of Congress.

Under rules of the Senate, four committee might take the offer under consideration. These are the military affairs committee, because the offer embraces army property; the appropriations committee, because an appropriation is necessary; the agricultural committee, because the contract calls for manufacture of fertilizer, and the judiciary committee, because a federal contract is involved.

Members of the "bloc" will urge that the offer be referred to the agriculture committee, because of its extreme importance to farmers. This committee, headed by Senator Norris (Republican) of Nebraska, has repeatedly gone on record favoring farm legislation. The "bloc," however, feels the offer will be reported favorably by any one of the four committees.

If the matter is referred to the agriculture committee, members of the "bloc" tonight predicted that hearings might start within a week.

The "bloc" hopes to have the contract favorably reported within the next month so that work might be started if accomplished by spring.

Serious opposition is expected from the water power and fertilizer interests, but the "bloc" contends it has sufficient support to insure passage of the legislation needed to give Ford the project. This support comes from all agricultural states, including the "solid South" and from many mid-Western senators.

THE TRUE STORY of the KU KLUX KLAN

(Copyrighted)

BY COL. WINFIELD JONES

CHAPTER VII.

A Real Invisible Empire

We have seen in the new Ku Klux Klan the same principles in their various disorders which have occurred in the past. It was organized by the Atlanta Klan for the purpose to see who but an official command from the head of the Klan, where the ritual and ducking were secured before it was discovered that the Klan was not the same headquarters that individual Klansmen had taken the law into their own hands without any authority from the "Grand Cyclops" of the "Den." Whenever this has occurred, Wright, in according to evidence obtained at all times, immediately on a writ, invariably canceled the charter of the "Den," and endeavored to assist the sheriff of the county in prosecuting the guilty, to all great organizations an desirable members often secure an undesirable element in the churches and fraternal orders. This fact is well known to everybody who belongs to a fraternal order or a church. The Klan in the old days, as well as in recent times, have been blamed for crimes and misdemeanors with which it had no connection whatever. The greatest benefit was well earned, for it was really an invisible empire, while the work was confined to the white people in extreme control of their governments. The state and county governments were in the hands of our governors and other officials appointed from the white people as well as agents of the President's Bureau, and the military commanders were all hostile to the Klan.

Regularly, in nearly every section where a "Den" existed, the officials of authorities made desperate efforts to obtain a list of the members of the Klan and to break up the local "Den." For a former Confederate soldier to be found with a white woman on his automobile was nearly always followed by immediate arrest and imprisonment, and in the early days of the existence of the white organization resulted in a summary execution.

Thus the Klan was an invisibility or moved everywhere and on hand to disperse any unlawful assembly. There is not known a single instance in existence where a military commander was present at the dinner any of the secrets of the Klan or cause disclosure of a "Den."

Klansmen practiced absolute loyalty to their "Grand Cyclops," and the Klan members resented the discovery and the cardinal principles such which is the case with the "Grand Cyclops" or the "Grand Cyclops" was the most powerful attack in its community, and the Klan was ready to assist in the prosecution of such offenders without any with the purpose to prevent disorganization and to punish the guilty in their neighborhood. This was the general policy throughout all local "Dens." There were, of course, instances of abuse of the power possessed by a "Den."

A local "Den" would find a regular meeting place. This was for the purpose of holding regular meetings. The Klan usually always met at night, when there was moonlight, and was usually in some secluded spot near the town, where it was unlikely anyone would discover the presence of the assembly. Every member of the Klan was obligated to harbor in the strictest confidence everything that took place. This was the general policy that was always followed in regard to persons who had to be admitted to the Klan and had to be initiated. Every member had to consider their case at the Klan's next meeting, and this took place usually in the form of a letter sent to the Klan's secretary, who read the letter to the members at the meeting.

...WHO GOT THE MONEY?

...many false notions about wages and profits during the war have been exploded by the preliminary analysis of the 1920 census of manufacturing in United States.

The average wage-earner received $582 for his work during the year 1914. In 1919 he got $1,159, or a trifle less than $100 a month. The gain was about 100 per cent—almost exactly. In rough figures, it matched increase in cost of living.

The "white collar jobs" did not fare as well. The pay of the average salaried employe in manufacturing establishments was $1,335 in 1914. It rose to $1,999 in 1919, a gain of a trifle less than 50 per cent.

What was labor's share of the total? The census answers, as accurately as ever will be possible.

In 1919 there were 290,111 manufacturing establishments. On their payrolls they had:

9,098,119 wage-earners.
1,447,761 salaried employes.
270,003 proprietors and firm members.

The total value or selling price of all manufactured products was $62,427,825,000. From this, subtract $37,380,124,000, the value of materials used in manufacturing. The balance was spent like this:

Wages, $10,545,905,000.
Salaries, $2,893,046,000.

This leaves (after paying for materials, wages and salaries) $11,608,750,000.

Out of this came overhead expenses, including taxes, rent, depreciation funds and interest on loans. What was left went as profits on investment of $44,776,006,000, which enormous figure was the combined capitalization of all manufacturing establishments in 1919.

Bringing 1919 manufacturing down to small figures, out of every $624 received in sale of products, $374 went for raw and other materials, $105 for wages, $29 for salaries, leaving $116 for taxes, depreciation, rent and all other overhead, also profits.

It is obvious that, in manufacturing, neither wages nor profits were, on the average and excluding exceptions, as great as has been generally believed.

It looks big on paper, but the figures were in terms of inflated dollars—dollars of decreased buying power.

Between 1914 and 1919 manufacturing increased its number of wage-earners 29 per cent and the number of salaried employes 50 per cent. In the trip back to normal production, this explains much of the unemployment since the smash came in May, 1920.

From Russia come stories of cannibalism by people driven insane by hunger. One story is that children, fattened by the American relief administration, have been eaten by their parents. Take that with a grain of salt. Hunger reverts man to the animal state. But the animal state only intensifies the instinct of parents to sacrifice their lives for their children. Anyone who doubts this will be converted by slapping a baby in the presence of its father or mother, savage or civilized.

Henry Ford's factories turned out 1,013,958 passenger autos and trucks last year, 928,750 of which came from American plants, says a final report, just issued. The record day was July 14, with a production of 4,461 cars and trucks. That makes his yearly capacity about 1,500,000. When Henry looks back to the days when he ran a bicycle repair shop, he must feel dazed. Couldn't happen in any other country. America beats Aladdin's cave, for some.

...DAYTONA HAVE ...BASEBALL?

...life of summer baseball in Daytona is hanging in the balance now. Its fate will be decided Monday evening, when a ...thing up of the efforts of those selling season tickets will be made, to determine whether the response to the urgent call has been sufficient to warrant a continuation of plans for summer baseball or whether all plans for the coming season will be dropped.

The combined efforts of the Kiwanis and Rotary club members, and individuals so far have failed to arouse interest in the sale of the tickets sufficient to warrant summer baseball. The directors stated Saturday that unless one hundred tickets were disposed of before Monday night that little hope may be held out for Daytona's position in the Florida State League. Many have responded to the call, feeling that summer baseball or the lack of it makes or breaks Daytona in the summer time. But a sufficient number have not responded, many of the "old guard" who were depended upon to come forth still being among the missing.

Business men of Daytona heretofore had been solicited for subscriptions to the club. Many responded generously to the call. This year, when subscriptions are not asked, but only the general price of admission the response has been less.

Baseball is being put on a straight out-and-out business basis in Daytona this summer, if Daytona continues in the league. The directorate will contain one member from each of the civic clubs. Publicity will be given every move of the directors and officials. Weekly statements of disbursements and receipts will be made to the public that fans may at all times know the status of the club financially.

Already Daytona is conceded to have the best team in view of any on the circuit. Daytona cannot well afford to drop summer baseball at this time, when she has but reached the building stage after several years of preparation for a winning team.

Business men and residents of Daytona in the summer time do not need to be told the advantages of summer baseball. There is no comparison between the city of three years ago, without baseball, and the city of the past two summers.

Daytona has for too long a time been allowing "George to do it" when it came to footing the bills for baseball. No one is asked to finance the team, the request at this time being only for the purchase of a few season tickets, for which value will be received.

Monday is the last call. Have you yours?

THE TRUE STORY of the KU KLUX KLAN

(Copyrighted)
BY COL. WINFIELD JONES

CHAPTER VII.

A Real Invisible Empire

We have seen in the new Ku Klux a parallel to these conditions, in that various disorders which have occurred, particularly in Texas, were traced by the Atlanta Klan Headquarters to men who had no official connection with the local Klan, and where tarring and feathering cases occurred before it was discovered by the investigators of the Atlanta headquarters that individual Klansmen had taken the law into their own hands without any authority from the "Grand Cyclops" of the "Den." Wherever this happened the Imperial Wizard, according to evidence obtained at Atlanta headquarters by the writer, invariably canceled the charter of the "Den," and endeavored to assist the local officers in prosecuting the guilty. In all great organizations undesirable members often secure admittance, even in the churches and fraternal orders. This fact is well known to everybody who belongs to a fraternal order or a church. The Klan in the old days, as well as in present times, has often been blamed for crimes and misdemeanors with which it had no connection whatever.

"The Invisible Empire" was well named, for it was really an invisible empire. While its work was crude and often violent, it exercised a potent influence in recovering white supremacy in the South, and was undoubtedly the chief factor in the political reconstruction of the South which resulted in the white people regaining control of their governments. The state and county governments were in the hands of war governors and other officials, appointed from Washington, as well as agents of the Freedmen's Bureau, and the military commanders were all hostile to the Klan.

Repeatedly, in nearly every section where a "Den" existed, the constituted authorities made desperate efforts to obtain a list of the members of the Klan and to break up the local "Den." For a former Confederate soldier to be found with a Klan uniform on his premises was nearly always followed by immediate arrest and imprisonment, and in some cases the discovery of the white regalia resulted in a summary execution.

But the Klan was so thoroughly organized everywhere and so bound together by mutual interests that there is not known a single instance in reconstruction where a military commander was able to discover any of the secrets of the Klan or cause disbandment of a "Den."

Klansmen practiced absolute loyalty to their "Grand Cyclops," and "Den" members maintained the secrecy and the cardinal principles upon which the order was founded. Usually the "Grand Cyclops" was the most prominent citizen in his community and a man of standing, influence and good character. His assistants were nearly always of the same type, and these level-headed men were dominated only with the purpose to prevent misgovernment and to punish the guilty in their neighborhood. This was the general policy throughout all their local "Dens." There were, however, instances of abuse of the power possessed by a "Den."

A local "Den" never had a regular meeting place. This was for the purpose of securing greater secrecy. The Klan nearly always met at night, when there was moonlight, and usually in woodland or abandoned farming land, where it was unlikely any one would discover the masked riders at assembly. Every member of the Klan was obligated to hasten to the meeting place when summoned. The policy that was always followed in regard to persons who had to be corrected in the neighborhood was to consider their case at the Klan's meeting, and it was the invariable practice to first serve warning on the obnoxious one. If he did not speedily reform, another meeting of the Klan decided on his punishment. Notices were prepared in an illiterate manner so as to mystify the recipient and better preserve the secrecy. Such warnings were always posted at night. From a study of reconstruction it is evident that the Klan's secret methods certainly subdued or intimidated the negro and bad white men, and caused the white people to feel that an invisible power existed for their protection, under which they felt secure, much more so than they regarded the local laws and the carpetbag officers as means of protection of life and property.

Occasionally it happened that the "Grand Cyclops" of a Klan was an incapable person, and under his leadership the Klan sometimes committed indiscretions in direct contradiction to its principles. Sometimes it occurred that former Confederate soldiers, young men of an adventurous disposition, made up the membership of a Klan, and an organization of that kind also sometimes deviated from the purpose for which it was organized. Law-abiding and honest men who found themselves in such "Dens" took the first opportunity to withdraw. Many men in these circumstances were glad to renounce their membership without appearing to be traitors to the oath they had taken.

The Klan also played an important part in politics, and in neighborhoods where a "Den" was strongly organized and numerous in membership the members intimated the negroes and kept them from the polls in elections. Often men in large numbers, who were thought to be Klansmen, attended the polls, and, heavily armed, by a threatening attitude, prevented the negroes from electing their candidate. They were thus able to convince the negro that it was not wise for the black race to participate actively in political affairs, and this contributed probably more than any other maneuver of the whites in wresting control of their governments from the hands of the carpetbaggers.

It not infrequently happened that the activity of the local "Den" met the approval of the Federal garrisons, and instances are known of former Union soldiers and officers who settled in the South after the end of the war who were members of the Ku Klux Klan, and who were thoroughly in sympathy with the efforts of the white population to establish law and get control of their government. There was hardly ever personal animosity between Union soldiers who settled in the South after the war and the Confederates. Rather a spirit of soldierly comradeship existed between the former foes. Few indeed of the carpetbag officials or agents of the Freedmen's Bureau had served in the Union army.

A strategic policy of the Klan, which proved very effective in preventing Federal army commanders from tracing their movements or gaining information concerning their night riding, was that non-resident "Dens" would carry on operations, the local "Dens" where the action was taken remaining quiescent. A "Den" near the Alabama state line would raid into Mississippi, riding at night perhaps a distance of 25 or 30 miles, visit punishment on a victim marked out by the Mississippi "Den," and by daylight be back over the Alabama line and disbanded at their homes. Under such procedure it was practically impossible for Federal army commanders to gain any information of the activities of the horsemen who rode by night.

Following is an official order of the Pulaski "Den," published in 1869, and it is a type of similar orders and Klan proclamation used throughout the South:

"Headquarters Realm No. 1,
Dreadful Era, Black Epoch,
Dreadful Hour.

"General Order No. 1:

"Whereas, information of an authentic character has reached these headquarters that the blacks in the counties of Marshall, Maury, Giles and Lawrence are organized into military companies, with the avowed purpose to make war upon and exterminate the Ku Klux Klan, said blacks are hereby solemnly warned and ordered to desist from further action in such organizations, if they exist.

"The Grand Dragon regrets the necessity of such an order. But this Klan shall not be outraged and interfered with by lawless negroes and meaner white men, who do not and never have understood our purposes.

"In the first place this Klan is not an institution of violence, lawlessness and cruelty; it is not lawless; it is not aggressive; it is not military; it is not revolutionary.

"It is, essentially, originally and inherently a protective organization. It proposes to execute law instead of resisting it; and to protect all good men, whether white or black, from the outrages and atrocities of bad men of both colors, who have been for the past three years a terror to society and an injury to us all.

"The blacks seem to be impressed with the belief that this Klan is especially their enemy. We are not the enemy of the blacks, as long as they behave themselves, make no threats upon us, and do not attack or interfere with us.

"But if they make war upon us they must abide the awful retribution that will follow.

"This Klan while in its peaceful movements, and disturbing no one, has been fired into three times. This will not be endured any longer; and if it occurs again, and the parties be discovered, a remorseless vengeance will be wrecked upon them.

"We reiterate that we are for peace and law and order. No man, white or black, shall be molested for his political sentiments.

"Outrages have been perpetrated by irresponsible parties in the name of this Klan. Should such parties be apprehended, they will be dealt with in a manner to insure us future exemption from such imposition. These imposters have, in some instances, whipped negroes. This is wrong, wrong! It is denounced by this Klan, as it must be by all good and humane men."

Prince of Wales Restores Dwindling Prestige of British Royal House

Prince Edward of Wales, known throughout the world as the most democratic member of any reigning royal family, has done much to restore the dwindling prestige of the British royal house.

His popularity in the British Isles is so great that statesmen have said he could run for any election office and win over any candidate by a big majority.

The prince is so well liked in distant British possessions—Canada, Australia and New Zealand—as at home.

He has unassuming manner he overcame strained Anglo-an dislike for royalty and won the respect and admiration of the whole nation while on his tour of the United States.

Born in 1894

The prince was born June 27, 1894, while his great-grandmother, Queen Victoria, still sat on the British throne. He was christened Albert Edward Christian George Andrew Patrick David.

Shortly after his birth, his grandfather, Edward VII, succeeded to the throne, leaving the prince's father as heir to the crown.

While Edward still was a boy his grandfather died and his father, George V, mounted the throne.

At 13 Prince Edward passed an examination for admission to the British navy. He continued to qualify for a naval career at Osborne and Dartmouth.

Becomes Prince of Wales

At the close of his course in 1913—which he was 17—Edward was formally invested with the title of Prince of Wales.

By request of the Welsh people the investiture was held on Welsh soil for the first time since 1911.

Shortly after the investiture the prince completed the British navy cadet establishment on H. M. S. Hindustan.

In 1913 he went to Oxford university. There he was a simple freshman without privileges.

He attended lectures, took notes, passed in his third year by the outbreak of the World War. The prince was commissioned a second lieutenant.

But his father and Lord Kitchener refused to allow him to accompany his regiment to France. They feared the consequences if the royal heir were captured by the enemy.

Proves Hero in France

But persistent pleas by the prince finally won the consent of the king and his war minister. On November 20, 1914, Wales was sent to France as special aide de camp to Sir John French.

As a captain on the general staff, Wales showed himself a leader of men. Disregarding the outgunfire, he placed around him, he continually ran into danger.

Recognition of his valor came in the form of the French Croix de

Recognition of his valor came in the form of the French Croix de ... conferred by President Raymond Poincare of France.

A year after the close of the war the prince made his trip to Canada and the United States. In both countries he was received with great enthusiasm.

In November, 1920, he started on his present trip through British possessions in the Far East, despite the growing hostility to British rule shown there.

Romance Rumored

Rumors of romance between Wales and half a dozen European noblewomen have been frequent. But the prince persistently refused to marry.

Well-founded reports in England recently indicated that the prince's engagement to Lady Rachel Cavendish was to be announced upon the prince's return from his eastern tour.

Lady Rachel is a daughter of the Duke of Devonshire. Their connection is purely a love match, not dictated by diplomatic expediency.

Hundreds of anecdotes have been built around Prince Edward.

Behind the lines in France, the prince picked up a tired private in his motor, it is told.

Not recognizing the prince, the private engaged in intimate conversation and showed the prince a picture of his sweetheart.

"Have you one like it?" the soldier asked.

"No, but I have one of my father," the prince answered.

And he produced a gold coin bearing the head of George V. and passed it into the soldier's hand.

* * *

His associates in the war continually advised him to shun danger.

"What difference does it make if I do get 'piped?'" he asked. "I've plenty of brothers at home to take my place."

* * *

The prince was noted for his shy, friendly speeches. At Washington he visited wounded soldiers at Walter Reese hospital.

His only speech was:

"Comrades in arms: I'm having a very good time in the United States and I hope you'll be out of the hospital soon and having a good time, too."

TO CHARGE MURDER, FOUND DYING IN ROOM

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Upon examination of the fashion plates vainly depicted tonight in the death of Miss Florette Dodson, beautiful movie actress, it was found that one item was reported engaged to marry Charles Chaplin.

Authorities are investigating the case.

The young actress, who formerly was a well known member of the Hollywood film colony, died this afternoon at St. Vincent's hospital, where she was removed Friday night after being found unconscious in a bedroom of her apartment. She was escaping from the room where she ate when friends forced entrance into the apartment.

At St. Vincent hospital it was stated it had not been determined whether death was due to gas poisoning or an overdose of narcotic.

In a heroic effort to save her life, Mal Eastman, noted radical leader and editor of the Liberator, submitted to a blood transfusion operation this morning.

According to residents of Greenwich Village and the private families with the affairs of the actress and Eastman, the pair had been intimately and remarkably friendly with each other since Eastman separated from his wife, Ida Rauh, an actress, who is said to be in New Mexico suing for divorce.

Friends refused to discuss rumors that Miss Dodson and Eastman had quarreled seriously. Eastman, it was learned was one of the first to be summoned to the hospital and appeared to be greatly disturbed. He was at her bedside when she died and was on the verge of collapse when he departed from the hospital.

Charlie Chaplin became an ardent admirer of the young actress soon after her debut in the Hollywood film colony as a featured player with the Goldwyn company.

Thought her, in fact Eastman in New York and the comedian and the radical leader later became close friends. The romance between Chaplin and the actress came to an end, but according to gossip, it caused no estrangement between Miss Dodson and Eastman which was never wholly healed.

Friends, insisting that the young woman had no motive for suicide, declare she was in the habit of taking cocaine as a sleeping potion. They say, if she took an overdose, it was by accident.

Those questioned by the city medical examiner attended the Shorey that while half asleep the assistant turned on the gas.

She was found in her bed partially undressed.

Preliminary examination of the actress' body in the city morgue tonight by officers of the medical examiner's office failed to reveal the exact cause of death. "Gas," with a question mark after it, was the notation made on the examiner's report.

An autopsy will be performed tomorrow morning, the medical examiner announced.

GERMAN TRADE UNIONS SHOW CHANGE OF FRONT OVER PROPOSED STRIKE

BERLIN, Feb. 4.—Suddenly changing front, German trade union leaders who had been advocating a general strike in spite of the strikers' refusal, entered into conciliatory negotiations with the government today. Chancellor Wirth issued a proclamation warning that a general strike would certainly be disastrous to Germany and perhaps to the Genoa economic conference. He announced all strikers to report to work at once, pledging that the government will deal with the workers and give their demands due consideration.

In response to the chancellor's proclamation, many of the railroad men returned to work.

HALF MILLION DOLLAR PULP MILL FOR MONROE

MONROE, La., Feb. 4.—Representatives of eastern capitalists are in Monroe negotiating for the purchase of a site on which to erect a pulp and paper mill. There is every indication that the mill will be erected. A corporation with a capital stock of $500,000 is planned and about 200 men will be employed. This will be the first mill of its kind erected in this section of the South.

BRITAIN APPROVES A SUGGESTION, IRISH FRAME CONSTITUTION

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Official Downing street today gave its approval to the suggestion of Michael Collins, minister of finance in the Irish provisional government, that all parliamentary representatives of the whole of Ireland be called together to adopt a policy and frame a constitution for the whole of Ireland.

This proposal was made by Collins to Sir James Craig, Ulster premier, while the two were conferring at Dublin Thursday, but the ulster statesman has not yet replied to it.

Despite the fact that the boundary dispute between Collins, representing South Ireland, and Craig, representing North Ireland, has become critical, officials close to Premier Lloyd George said that the British would not intervene.

SUCH IS FRIGIDAIRE

Why provide with infinite thought and care fine linens of snowy whiteness, fine glass and silverware and a wealth of beautiful flowers and then serve your expected guest with just ordinary food. It's no longer necessary.

The crowning touch of distinction to an exquisite table is the super quality of food served from a Frigidaire.

Food comes to your table from the dry, crisp cold of Frigidaire in an appetizing condition unknown to an ice-box.

Meats and birds can be "aged" under your own care to just the right point of juicy tenderness and flavor, so dear to the most exacting connoisseur.

Fruits and salads contain all their original freshness.

Dainty desserts, chilled or frozen, are obtainable at the confectioner's and characteristic of your own creative skill, are a never ending source of surprise to your family and guests.

There is a beautiful crystal-white cake of ice from every class, frozen automatically from your own pure drinking water, placed in the ice trays.

All of these delicious and much useful in food and exposure are possible with Frigidaire.

And they are obtained with less than ordinary trouble and labor also, for food can be purchased and prepared at your leisure and put away in your Frigidaire to keep in perfect condition until needed.

Think of the relief of not having to prepare dishes at the last moment.

With Frigidaire you are always ready for the unexpected guests.

When dinner is over your Frigidaire invites the inspection and interest of your guests. Standing in your serving room or kitchen in all its snow white purity, it is a thing of beauty within—a mark of your progressive housekeeping.

Tom Reigler, detective sergeant, explained how he made the preliminary police investigation at the Taylor home.

Coroner Nance then led the jury to an adjoining room and instructed them how to arrive at their verdict.

Many of the spectators, anticipating the questioning of Douglas MacLean, Mrs. MacLean, Mary Miles Minter and other prominent motion picture stars, appeared to be dazed by the abrupt termination of the proceedings.

Declaring that a motive for a crime had been established and that the arrest of a man whom the police believe to be the murderer of Taylor, will be made in 24 hours, possibly less, Captain David L. Adams, head of the detective bureau at central police station, threw a bombshell into the case.

"Working secretly and while the suspected murderer believed that suspicion was falling on another person, detective from New York office have woven a chain of evidence that we believe is unbreakable," Adams announced.

A special detail of police, in charge of Assistant Chief of Police A. W. Murray, will be assigned to handle the vast crowd expected to attend the funeral of Taylor Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, it was announced.

Predictions were heard tonight, after a check was made, that the attendance will be the largest at any funeral ever held in this city. The services will take place in St. Paul Protestant Cathedral, opposite Pershing Square, and will be conducted by Dean MacCormick. Interment will be in Hollywood cemetery.

Close friends of Taylor stated tonight that his daughter, Ethel Daisy Taylor, said to be attending a fashionable school at Mamaroneck, New York, would probably be brought here to become his legal heir.

A letter from the girl was found among Taylor's effects. It was filled with typical school girl observations and hinted of the tender love and devotion that existed between the [two].

An examination of Taylor's safety deposit box revealed that his known assets amount to approximately $75,000, but enough is being considered for valuable oil and mining stocks, which he is known to have recently purchased and which have not been found.

The cloak of mystery covering the life of Taylor was gradually being removed tonight.

Former Wife Talks.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Mrs. E. L. C. Robins, former wife of William Desmand Taylor, slain movie director, told tonight of Taylor's strange disappearance from New York in 1908 when he deserted her and their infant daughter.

"I married William Cunningham D. Tanner, of Dublin, Ireland, in 1901. He disappeared in October, 1908," said Mrs. Robins.

"Two and one-half years ago I learned that he had changed his name to William Desmond Taylor. We could assign no reason for his disappearance except possibly aphasia."

Mrs. Robins, who married the movie director known in Los Angeles as Taylor, while a member of the original "Floradora" company, sat with her 20-year-old daughter, Ethel Daisy Tanner, as she talked to reporters.

"The news of Mr. Tanner's death was a great shock to my daughter and myself," she said.

"I got a divorce from him in 1912 and was awarded the custody of my daughter. I had been married five years to Mr. Robins when I learned of my first husband's whereabouts."

According to Mrs. Robins there had been no effort either on her part or her daughters' to conceal their relationship to Taylor.

According to her friends, her fondness for her father was marked. She never lost an opportunity to be with him. Her room in the sumptuous Robins home at Oriental Point, Mamaroneck, is filled with his letters and presents he sent her.

BRITAIN APPROVES A SUGGESTION, IRISH FRAME CONSTITUTION

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Official Downing street today gave its approval to the suggestion of Michael Collins, minister of finance in the Irish provisional government, that all preliminary representatives of the whole of Ireland be called together to adopt a policy and frame a constitution for the whole of Ireland.

This proposal was made by Collins to Sir James Craig, Ulster premier, while the two were conferring at Dublin Thursday, but the ulster statesman has not yet replied to it.

Despite the fact that the boundary dispute between Collins, representing South Ireland, and Craig, representing North Ireland, has become critical, officials close to Premier Lloyd George said that the British would not interfere.

[MOVIE BEAUTY] FOUND DEAD IN [HOLLYWOOD] ROOM

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Another sensation of the motion picture world developed tonight in the death of Miss Florence Deshon, beautiful "movie" actress, who at one time was reported engaged to marry Charlie Chaplin.

Authorities are investigating the case.

The young actress, who formerly was a well known member of the Hollywood film colony, died this afternoon at St. Vincent's hospital, where she was removed Friday night after being found unconscious in a bedroom of her apartment. Gas was escaping from the room where she lay when friends forced entrance into the apartment.

At St. Vincent hospital it was stated it had not been determined whether death was due to gas poisoning or an overdose of veronal.

In a heroic effort to save her life, Max Eastman, noted radical leader and editor of the Liberator, submitted to a blood transfusion operation this morning.

According to residents of Greenwich Village and to persons familiar with the affairs of the actress and Eastman, the pair had been unusually and remarkably friendly with each other since Eastman separated from his wife Ida Rahh, an actress, who is said to be in New Mexico suing for divorce.

Friends refused to discuss rumors that Miss Deshon and Eastman had quarreled seriously. Eastman, it was learned, was one of the first to be summoned to the hospital and appeared to be greatly disturbed. He was at her bedside when she died and was on the verge of collapse when he departed from the hospital.

Charlie Chaplin became an ardent admirer of the young actress soon after her debut in the Hollywood film colony as a featured player with the Goldwyn company.

Through her, he met Eastman in New York and the comedian and the radical leader later became close friends. The romance between Chaplin and the actress came to an end, but according to gossip, it caused an estrangement between Miss Deshon and Eastman which was never wholly healed.

Friends, insisting that the young woman had no motive for suicide, declare she was in the habit of taking veronal as a sleeping potion. They say, if she took an overdose, it was by accident.

Those questioned by the city medical examiner presented the theory that while half asleep she accidentally turned on the gas.

She was found in her bed partially undressed.

Preliminary examination of the actress' body in the city morgue tonight by officers of the medical examiner's office failed to reveal the exact cause of death. "Gas," with a question mark after it, was the notation made on the examiner's report.

An autopsy will be performed tomorrow morning, the medical examiner announced.

GERMAN TRADE UNIONS SHOW CHANGE OF FRONT OVER PROPOSED STRIKE

BERLIN, Feb. 4.—Suddenly changing front, German trade union leaders who had been advocating a general strike in support of the striking rail men, entered into conciliatory negotiations with the government today. Chancellor Wirth issued a proclamation warning that a general strike would certainly be disastrous to Germany and perhaps to the Genoa economic conference. He summoned all strikers to return to work at once, pledging that the government will treat with the workers and give their demands due consideration.

In response to the chancellor's proclamation, many of the railroad men returned to work.

HALF MILLION DOLLAR PULP MILL FOR MONROE

MONROE, La., Feb. 4.—Representatives of eastern capitalists are in Monroe negotiating for the purchase of a site on which to erect a pulp and paper mill. There is every indication that the mill will be erected. A corporation with a capital stock of $500,000 is planned and about 200 men will be employed. This will be the first mill of this kind erected in this section of the South.

ALABAMA U. BASKETBALL TEAM MEETS FIRST DEFEAT

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 4.—Albama University's basketball team suffered its first defeat of the year here tonight, losing to Georgia Tech, 36 to 29. It was Alabama's first game of the year away from home.

TURKISH SUBMARINES ACTIVE [AGAINST] GREEK TRANSPORTS

ROME, Feb. 4.—Advices from Brindisi today report that Turkish submarines are "actively chasing Greek transports in the Aegean Sea." It is believed, the dispatch added, that the submarines are either French or Russian.

The Turkish Nationalist government, which is at war against the Greeks, has no navy. Turkish forces, however, hold territory upon the Black Sea and the Sea of Marmora. It has been reported persistently of late that the Turks had received war supplies of various kinds from both France and Russia. Greece is sending reinforcements to Asia Minor for a new drive against the Turks.

DEFENSE FLOTILLAS IN BRITISH NAVY ABOLISHED

LONDON, Feb. 4.—In accordance with the government's policy of naval retrenchment, the admiralty announced today that the local defense flotillas will be abolished April 1. About 25 destroyers with their crews will be taken out of commission.

GLORIA CARUSO PRODIGY

GLORIA CARUSO AND BABY GLORIA

NEW YORK, Feb. 5—Gloria Caruso is a prodigy giving proof of it every single time her father sings.

At the only rehearsal of the Metropolitan opera company that could hold the position of assistant baby not even excepting Gloria Caruso is certain that Baby Gloria will not outdo her father in the part.

"Is her father's girl," she says, and it is her baby way to imitate papa. Gloria Caruso is only two and a half years old, but she has gestures and facial expressions that are truly remarkable for such a baby. Mme. Caruso declares that she has taken such an active interest in the singing of her husband that she has memorized all of his songs in the original Italian.

Gloria Caruso has not been taught to sing by anyone. She has a natural ear for music, and she has a voice which would be capable of training.

It is the only Italian word Gloria knows, Gloria Caruso explained to a reporter. A wife by the will learns several words.

Madame Caruso intends to take to Europe as a singer American girl despite the artistic hell to which it is subjected by the singing of Italian opera. She is going to be educated in America and she is going to be allowed to make her own decision of expressing the talent that is hers.

"I think it will be there, but it will be too early to be sure. However, she is her father's daughter, and she may have genius."

GLORIA CARUSO PRODIGY

MADAME CARUSO AND BABY GLORIA

NEW YORK, Feb. 5—Gloria Caruso is a prodigy giving promise of becoming a great singer like her famous mother.

Gloria the only offspring of the [illegible] for years held the position [illegible] world's foremost tenor can sing [illegible] most children of six. [illegible] Caruso is certain that Baby [illegible] will follow her father in the [illegible] greatness.

Gloria is "her father's girl." She [illegible] him, and in her baby way [illegible] him and has his gestures [illegible] mannerisms. None could mistake [illegible] for the Italian artist that he [illegible] none would pick out Madame [illegible] for other than typical New [illegible] born-and-bred woman that she is. [illegible] has her father's lustrious dark [illegible] and olive-tinted complexion.

[illegible] to sing. She's not bashful [illegible] refused to sing. Her repertoire is [illegible] but its scope is wide, for [illegible] from "Three Blind Mice" to [illegible] her father's arias.

"She never heard her father sing [illegible]," says Madame Caruso. [illegible] when he was taken sick, he often [illegible] to her. And every day [illegible] records of his songs on the [illegible].

"She never can hear enough of [illegible] records.

"Daddy!" she exclaims, when the [illegible] begins to turn and the tenor's [illegible] stilled by death but preserved [illegible], fills the room with cadenza.

"Daddy!" she repeats, and tries to [illegible] with him.

There is something about seeing [illegible] child, standing tiptoe on sturdy [illegible] legs with fascinatingly dimpled [illegible], looking wistfully into depths of the phonograph, that brings tears to one's eyes.

Baby Gloria cannot realize that she'll never see her father again.

The telephone rings. She runs to it ahead of the butler or the maid. She takes down the receiver and cries, "Daddy, daddy."

Madame Caruso indulges her child in her fancies concerning her father. "I want to keep him alive for her" she says. "It will help her. So his pictures, his records, his gifts—and the Italian word he taught her—"

It is the only Italian word Gloria knows. Enrico Caruso schooled her in enunciating it with the soft Italian accent—"Madonna."

Madame Caruso intends to raise her daughter as a simple American girl, despite the millions left to them by the tenor, millions being increased by the multiplying royalties from records.

"We are going to Italy in May," she says. "But we will return in six months and spend most of our future life in America. She is going to be educated in America and she is going to be allowed to select her own medium of expressing the talent that is hers.

"I think it will be music, but it still is too early to be sure. However, she is her father's daughter, and she must have genius."

CHIROPRACTIC TALK NO. 20

"CHRONIC HEADACHES"

By Dr. E. J. MEINHARDI

If we are enjoying an automobile trip and something goes wrong with the engine, we at once look for the CAUSE of the trouble. That found and ADJUSTED, the automobile will go as before. The Human Body is a far more intricate piece of machinery. Whenever any part fails to work properly, it stands to reason that we must at once look for the Cause. This will invariably be found to exist where the nerves pass between the bones of the spine. As long as these bones (vertebrae) remain in their normal positions the nerves are free from impingement (pinching); but as soon as any one of the vertebrae is out of alignment—no matter how slightly—there is bound to be pressure on one or more nerves.

HEADACHES of every description are signs of nerve pinching somewhere in the spine. A thorough training enables the Chiropractor to know just where to look for the CAUSE. When the CAUSE is located, the skilled Chiropractor adjusts the subluxated (displaced) vertebrae back to its normal position—thereby relieving the pinched nerves and the Headache will vanish. Give it a fair trial and you will be surprised at the result.

Also remember that in choosing your Chiropractor the old motto applies as with most things: "The safest way is to consult the very best."

We do not charge for consultation and examination.

TEN WOUNDED WHEN TROOPS CLASH WITH STRIKERS IN NEWPORT

NEWPORT, Ky., Feb. 4—At least ten persons were wounded, one probably fatally, when state troops on duty at the plant of the Newport Rolling Mills, and strikers and strike sympathizers clashed tonight.

The battle started when non-union workmen started to leave the plant. They were attacked by strikers, who are also said to have fired a volley of shots at soldiers who rushed to the assistance of the strike-breakers. The soldiers returned the fire and for a considerable time a furious battle raged.

GENERAL PERSHING IN CHARGE DEPARTMENT OF WAR FOR PRESENT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4—General John J. Pershing today to all intents and purposes is secretary of war in President Harding's cabinet.

Secretary of War Weeks has slipped away on a vacation without disclosing his destination.

Assistant Secretary of War Wainwright is making a 7,000 mile tour of inspection with Major General Harbord, the assistant chief of staff.

So that leaves "Black Jack" in absolute command.

Although no information has been received as to the extent to which Volusia county will be represented by exhibits at the Sub-Tropical Fair to be held in Orlando February 10-15, this county is well represented through these agencies at least—the Chamber of Commerce, the County T. M. C. A. and the Rotary Club.

The Chamber of Commerce is making preparations for a very attractive exhibit, the details of which will be announced later. It is expected that by the last the county over has had in the county commissioners have been completed a model of the court house for the purpose this year. This young artist is a kid in the grades of the Daytona school and he has promise of real artistic ability.

"Anyone pays of art to the entire county will have an opportunity to see the pictures recently exhibited here on the Chamber of Commerce art exhibit," he said.

Mr. Babson was born in Gloucester, Mass., in 1875. His father and mother were members of the Congregational church and when a young lad of six he was converted in a revival campaign. Throughout his childhood he was greatly interested in Christian Endeavor and Y. M. C. A. work.

At the age of 21 after entering the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Boston, and in 1896 graduated as a civil engineer. Plans Made for Organization of Triple Cities Motor Club After Meeting With Triple A Officials

With the arrival yesterday afternoon of Charles C. O'Connor of Cleveland and S. M. Brenan of Washington, representing the American Automobile Association, a movement was launched on the way to organize a motor club in the Triple Cities.

Mr. O'Connor spoke to an interested gathering at the Hotel Wagner in the Cedar Burgess following the banquet tendered yesterday afternoon and scheduled the organization meeting of work the association has done in recent years and the condition of the roads. We found them were 31 advertising agencies each claiming it had the best and shortest route to Florida but it is quite evident that at least three were misleading and that one could not get anything definite and specific that he could rely on for the trip to Florida, but they could get it on the route to California because the American Automobile Association had made the necessary preparations for them.

The association also had provided standard mechanical service for them in every county through which they passed and if any accidents or other difficulties it was without charge to them unless it was a flagrant violation and the judge fined them. They also were provided with a good weekly card which was good for host to $50 in case they were arrested for violating traffic regulations.

Two Routes to Florida.

"Now this is what the Association is going to do for the eastern section of the country. The highways lead big south, have been selected as the official routes. One of these is by the Lincoln and Dixie Highways and the chambers of commerce and other similar organizations and is doing all in its power to encourage the construction of more modern roads and regulations, and in each of these states the Automobile Club has a special garage for members of the association and information bureau, which is required to give them free service. An attorney for the association is also employed in each state whose duty it is to give members free legal advice and represent them if they get into court.

"The work of establishing this new service in the Metropolitan district will be started to have a completed along both routes by the time the tourist season starts back home, and we are hopeful that we will be in position to tell others about the fine roads that have been made ready for automobile touring and that induce make others to make the trip South next year.

Mr. O'Connor said that the association work somewhat similarly regards the establishment of camps and the other official highways plan, giving information as to camps, etc., that are located on that route, and also of camps that have available at any time the usual number of tourists that apply upon which he can rely absolutely.

It also was pointed out by the officials that the association has the co-operation of the Chamber of Commerce and other bodies of men who have the welfare of the people at heart and who will help in every way possible to protect the tourist from the fakirs and grafters who prey upon them.

Volusia County to Be Represented at Sub-Tropical Fair

Although no information has been received as to the extent in which business men and manufacturers of Volusia county will be represented by exhibits at the Mid-Winter Fair to be held in Orlando February 14-18, this county will be well represented through three agencies at least—the Chamber of Commerce, the County Y. M. C. A. and the women.

The Chamber of Commerce is making arrangements for a very attractive exhibit, the details of which will be announced later. It probably will be the best the county ever has had as the county commissioners have increased the appropriation for that purpose this year. The fair management requested the Y. M. C. A. to arrange an exhibit showing the "Y" work as it is conducted in this county. Material is being collected and a display in keeping with the high-class exhibit that has characterized the Volusia county building in the past will be in charge of the older boys from the Hi-Y club of the county, according to L. R. Reynolds, secretary.

Concerning the exhibit, Mr. Reynolds said:

"The exhibit will contain, among other things, pictures of group and camp activities; special charts on health and recreation; a series of charts on the Christian citizenship training program, which forms the basis of our group work; a map of the county, showing the various points touched by the Y. M. C. A. work; a collection of books and material dealing with boy sociology; Bible study courses that are used in the groups; a display of outdoor athletic equipment; a triangle showing the men who are back of the Y. M. C. A. work in Volusia county in an official capacity; various publications, bulletins and other matter relating to the technique of the work.

"We have a boy artist who is painting an enlarged picture of 'The Master,' the original of which was painted by Darius Cobb. A good many boys and young men have a feeling that Christ was a kind of a pale faced, enemic man. This picture presents the striking contrast and brings out the strong manly characteristics, which every red-blooded fellow admires. It is interesting to note that this young artist is a lad in the grades of the Daytona school and he has promise of real artistic ability.

"Another piece of art by the same boy will be an enlargement of the picture recently exhibited here entitled 'His New Day,' by S. M. Palmer."

Mrs. C. M. Wilder, chairman for woman's work in Daytona, has received a letter from E. W. Brown of DeLand, chairman of the Volusia county exhibit, saying that the exhibits will be collected from Daytona at the Chamber of Commerce at noon, February 13, and will be transported to Orlando in care of responsible truck drivers.

Mrs. Wilder announces that Miss Orpha Cole, county demonstrator of home economics, wishes especially for her exhibit Florida curios, articles of basketry, sewing, fancy work of all kinds, canned goods such as fruits, jellies, preserves, syrups, marmalades, crystalized fruits, candies, hand-painted china, paintings and wood carvings and especially good amateur photographs. In the poultry exhibit each bird must pay an entrance fee of fifty cents.

Miss Cole will personally take care of articles at the fair and supervise the packing for their return.

Plans Made for Organization of Triple Cities Motor Club After Meeting With Triple A Officials

With the arrival yesterday afternoon of Charles C. O'Connor, F. L. Cleveland and S. M. Braman of Washington, representing the American Automobile Association, a movement was put under way to organize a motor club in the Triple Cities.

Mr. O'Connor spoke to an interested gathering of men and women in the Casino Burgoyne following the band concert yesterday afternoon and explained the tremendous amount of work the association has done in recent years in boosting road improvement and making travel by auto more satisfactory to the tourist.

Mr. O'Connor was introduced by S. B. Crosby, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and at the conclusion of his address there was an informal conference of several prominent citizens regarding the necessary steps toward perfecting a club for motorists in the Halifax community.

It was decided that a meeting should be held in the city hall at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening for the purpose of organizing the club, and that owners of automobiles, dealers in autos and other advocates of good roads would be invited to be present.

To Address Clubs

Mr. Crosby, speaking for the Rotary club said he would make arrangements for Mr. O'Connor to address that organization Tuesday at noon, and W. B. Goldenburg, chairman of the good roads committee of the Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Kiwanis club, said he would arrange for him to appear before that club at the Wednesday luncheon.

In his address yesterday afternoon Mr. O'Connor said the American Automobile Association had been in existence since the time when there were only four automobiles in this country—one of them belonging to a circus man and being shown in a circus, and the other three belonging to business men.

"From the time of that early beginning," said Mr. O'Connor, "the American Automobile Association has had two main purposes in view. One was to secure the construction and maintenance of through highways, and the other was to obtain proper legislation to govern the use of them. The association has drafted and promoted practically all of the national legislation for road improvement that has been passed by congress."

Mr. O'Connor said that eighteen years ago the association got actively behind the proposition of improving the main highways from New York to California, and told how Illinois sent 22 auto tourists to California last year to one to Florida, while the number of tourists to the west coast from other states was proportionately high.

"And why was this true?" asked Mr. O'Connor. "Practically all of these tourists were seeking a desirable climate for the winter months, but why did they select California? Florida is further south than California, and our official investigations prove it has an 8 per cent better climate than the Pacific coast. There are 800 more miles of bad road to travel over going to California than if they had come to Florida. The scenery here and along the route south is just as beautiful as it is in California, and you have the warm gulf stream on one side of the state and the Gulf on the other to shield you from the cold.

Lack of Information

"Why then did not these tourists come to Florida? It was not because you haven't got the climate, and it wasn't because the roads are any better, but the reason was that there is not a single organization from the North to the South that could give an auto driver any definite information regarding the best routes to take and the condition of the roads. We found there were 32 advertising agencies each claiming it had the best and shortest route to Florida, but it is quite evident that at least 31 of them were mistaken. A tourist could not get anything definite and specific that he could rely on for the trip to Florida, but they could get it on the route to California because the American Automobile Association had made the necessary provision for them.

"The association also had provided standard mechanical service for them in every county through which the designated highways passed which was given them free of charge and also had provided in each county an attorney who looked after their legal difficulties, if any, without any cost to them unless it was a flagrant violation and the judge fined them. They also were provided with a membership card which was good for bond up to $50 in case they were arrested for violating traffic regulations.

Two Routes to Florida.

"Now this is what the association is going to do for the eastern section of the country. Two highways leading south have been selected as the official routes. One of these is between Chicago and St. Petersburg and is to accommodate those tourists who come from west of Cleveland. The other extends from Bangor, Me., to Miami and is to accommodate those tourists who come from east of Cleveland.

"In every county through which these routes pass the association is getting behind the county officials and the chambers of commerce and other similar organizations and is doing all in its power to encourage the construction or repair of the particular stretch of the road running through that county. It also is seeking to secure uniform traffic laws and regulations, and in each of these one garage is designated as the official garage for members of the association and affiliated motor clubs, which is required to give them free service. An attorney for the association also is designated in each county who is to give members free legal advice and represent them if they get into court.

"The work of establishing this free service was started November 25, and it is planned to have it completed along both routes by the time the tourists start back home this spring, so that they will be in position to tell others about the difficulties that have been overcome in automobile touring and thus induce many others to make the trip South next year."

Mr. O'Connor said that the association receives semi-monthly reports from each county through which these official highways pass, giving the exact condition of the road in that county so that every tourist will have available at any time the exact information and something upon which he can rely absolutely.

It also was pointed out, for instance, that if a motor club is organized here for affiliation with the A. A. A. the members will be entitled to the free use of all the privileges and courtesies of any other club in the United States in addition to the free road service and legal advice in every county through which he passes.

Beach Lifesavers Put Out to Plane; Find It All Okay

Shortly after noon on Saturday word was sent members of the Daytona Beach life saving crew that an airplane had landed on the surface of the ocean, about half a mile out from shore. Guy G. Bailey, A. W. Shaw and other members of the crew put out in the life-saving boat, with tools and paraphernalia to assist the aviators if needed, but upon arrival they found the pilot and mechanician peacefully eating their lunch and enjoying a rest on the smooth surface. The plane is one of the big six-passenger, four-blade Aeromarine planes of the Airways type, with Liberty motor, which is being delivered to the Aeromarine force at Miami, to be added to the Miami-Havana run, where five other planes of this type and five eleven-passenger planes are in service.

Pilot C. J. Zimmerman is in charge of the plane, with H. Greisenger as mechanician. The men left New York City Thursday, making stops in North and South Carolina enroute, and last night spent the night at Fernandina. The heavy fog over the ocean handicapped their flight down the coast, and by the time they reached a point opposite Daytona Beach, decided to anchor and rest until the fog lifted. If experiencing further fog the men planned to spend the night on the river and continue this morning to Miami.

Zimmerman is making his sixth flight from New York to Miami delivering the big planes. This is the last of the half dozen. He reported heavy ice when leaving New York, the plane being slightly damaged from ice as they got away on their long southward trip.

Mrs. Walter Hines Page Again Guest at the Bretton Inn

Mrs. Walter Hines Page, widow of the late ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary to Great Britain, noted author and publisher, who passed away in 1918, is a guest at the Bretton Inn, Ormond Beach, as usual. While here this winter Mrs. Page is compiling some of the works of her distinguished husband, who for many years was editor of The Atlantic Monthly, World's Work and other magazines as well as a member of the firm of Doubleday, Page & Co.

Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the noted Canadian explorer, who was a guest of Frank Chapman for a short time while here speaking at the Auditorium Friday, left Saturday for Miami, with the intention of returning to Bretton Inn later in the season for a longer period, so greatly pleased was he with Ormond Beach and the delights of the Halifax Country. Mr. and Mrs. Chapman will stay until March, as usual, before returning to their northern home.

E. M. Aydes is another regular winter resident of Bretton Inn well known in the Halifax Country who is again a guest here for the season.

Laurant & Company Attraction Tuesday at the Auditorium

Laurant and Company, magicians, will be the attraction at the Auditorium Tuesday evening, a regular assembly number.

For more than seventeen years the Great Laurant has been a Chautauqua and Lyceum headliner. For more than ten years he has appeared under Redpath management—a fact which speaks for itself. During the years which he has devoted to the Lyceum platform, many offers from vaudeville and theatrical managers have been turned aside by Mr. Laurant because he believed in the Lyceum as a greater field in which to present his work. In fact, as a charter member of the International Lyceum Association, he has had no small part in the development of this organization and the Lyceum movement as a whole.

The hight esteem in which he is held by the members of his own profession is evidenced in the fact that he was given a gold medal by the Society of American Magicians. He has also appeared on several occasions before societies of scientific research.

It has always been Mr. Laurant's aim to have the most artistic magic entertainment before the public. He has never been content to let well enough alone or to rest upon his laurels. Each season he has endeavored to make his entertainment better than the last.

The production of the coming season will be equipped in the usual lavish manner that has characterized all his entertainments, the stage settings surpassing in beauty all previous efforts. Fred Larson will assist Mr. Laurant and as stage manager will have charge of this mass of equipment, insuring a perfect presentation of the program.

Mr. Laurant will also be assisted by Miss Greta Banes, a talented pianiste who will delight the audience with her piano solos. She also will take an active part in the various magic scenes.

JOHN PHILIP SOUSA

which will draw to the auditorium center at the beach two large audiences.

Sousa's band consists of about 85 regular musicians, with a half dozen and more soloists, picked from the stars of their respective classes.

It is just thirty years ago that Sousa organized his band, and in all that time it has been known as the greatest military band in the world. Many world tours have added to their prominence and have brought much praise from many lands for the leader.

"There are many persons with great musical talent who play no instrument, have never learned to sing and yet who have within them all of the requirements for first rate musicians," said Sousa recently. "I have often been asked, from which of my parents I inherited such musical talent as I may have. Frankly, I do not believe that heredity in this line had anything to do with shaping my life work, but, on the other hand, I am convinced that environment had. My mother was not a musician, but my father played a trombone in the marine band of Washington and was a veteran of both the Mexican and Civil wars.

"As you know, there were many times in the latter conflict when band musicians were permitted to lay aside their instruments and volunteer for fighting service. My father took advantage of this, and on more than one occasion shouldered his musket and marched to battle. In later years I asked him with which he did the great execution, his gun or his trombone. I do not recollect that he ever gave me a satisfactory answer, but I am inclined to lean toward the latter, for I heard him play."

While in the city Sousa will be the guest of the Kiwanis club at regular noonday luncheon, when he will address the members.

Stewart to Speak at the Auditorium Sunday Night

Hon. Oliver W. Stewart, of Chicago, a former member of the Illinois legislature, and the leader of the Flying Squadron, will give two addresses in Daytona Beach in the Auditorium Sunday evening, Feb. 5th. He directs the organization from the last group of speakers, it being divided into three groups. That brings him into each city on the last day of the series of meetings and permits him to close up the campaign in each place.

Mr. Stewart was associated with former Governor J. Frank Hanly in founding the Flying Squadron Foundation and succeeded to the head of that organization on the death of the former on August 1, 1920.

There is no admission charged for any of the meetings to be held by the Flying Squadron in this city. Admission is free and everybody is invited.

Catholic Friends of Denis McCarthy Tender Reception

An enjoyable event Friday evening was the reception given Mr. Dennis McCarthy at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Uebelhoer in Seabreeze, the home being tastefully decorated for the occasion.

On the reception room table was a handsome centerpiece in which ferns were placed, the only flower being a single Killarney rose, to which had been added a small silk American flag.

Mr. McCarthy's poem, "The Immigrant's Contribution to the Stars and Stripes," is truly a masterpiece, same being read during the evening.

It being the poet's first visit to Florida, the hostess had eight of the girls from the colored industrial school sing plantation, old folks and jubilee songs. The first number was given outside the reception door, being "The Serenade," and the closing number "Way Down on the Suwanee River," in the same way, the melody becoming softer and sweeter and finally drowned by the sea, as the singers gradually walked away. Then in his clear expressive voice Mr. McCarthy charmed the guests of the evening with reading some of his poems. His wit and humor was delightful and fell on hearts that were in full sympathy with all he said.

The reception was a tribute and a courtesy due Mr. McCarthy as a part of worth and a splendid Catholic gentleman, and those of his faith wish to extend their thanks and appreciation to Mr. Holmes for bringing Mr. McCarthy here. They are proud of him not only as a poet and a splendid citizen, but a good Catholic too.

Knights of Columbus Hosts at Card Party

A very interesting and enjoyable card party was held in the former American Legion rooms on North Beach street Thursday evening under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus.

Bridge, five hundred and whist were in progress throughout the evening, and the following were awarded prizes for bridge: First prize, Mrs. Underferth; second, Miss Clara Dickman. In five hundred Mrs. Dwyer received first prize and Mr. Baldwin received second.

George Dittman was awarded the prize for pinnochle, and Mrs. Magner received the prize in playing whist.

There were 86 guests present and at the close of the evening delicious refreshments were served.

"Unique" Show of the Tourist Club Makes a Big Hit

"Well, this is a surprise to me. Your attendance is twice what I expected to see here tonight." Thus exclaimed one of our leading citizens, a man who has probably done more than any other to put the Halifax Country on the map in a sociologic and intellectual way, as he entered the Auditorium Thursday night and viewed a veritable sea of faces, numbering more than fifteen hundred. The occasion was the "unique" entertainment staged by the Triple Cities Tourist club for the purpose of raising funds to equip and furnish the new tourist headquarters and rest rooms, erected on the playground park, donated by S. J. Peabody, adjoining the Auditorium on the south.

The menu from soup to nuts was well prepared, each course being served in such an appetizing and pleasing manner that the large audience was constantly anticipating the next with pleasure and delight. The various courses, seven in all, were served by the state societies, Florida, out of the abundance of her garden, being first. Several piano selections by Mr. Corodi were followed by a number of catchy songs by little Jack Pellett, who thoroughly captivated his audience with his cute ways and bright little songs. A beautiful Florida scene now met the gaze of the audience as the curtain was raised. A tourist fresh from the land of ice and blizzard, impersonated by Roy Miller, was happily surprised as he wandered through a Florida garden filled with sun-kissed fruit and gorgeous flowers, these represented by little boys and girls in various costumes. A huge watermelon, on being cut by Mr. Miller, disclosed a girl quartet, who sang several southern melodies.

The second course was by New England. Miss Creipton, reading an original poem, entitled "New England." Dennis McCarthy, the Irish Poet of Boston, delighted all with his pleasing manner and poems of good cheer.

Kentucky, with one of the three articles for which she was formerly famous, now furnished the "piece de resistance," which tickled the palates of all the diners. A. W. Shaw, in soldier uniform, sang "My Old Kentucky Home," with guitar accompaniment. A one act playlet, featuring negro life, entitled, "Encouragement," was given by Mrs. Emma McPherson and Matt Turney, followed by a negro dialect reading by Mrs. McPherson entitled, "A Telephone Confab," costumed as a Philadelphia lady of 1365, representing Pennsylvania. Mrs. William Redwood Wharton thoroughly charmed and captivated her audience with her sweet voice and gracious manner.

Indiana, represented by a Hoosier quartet direct from the banks of the Wabash, composed of Professors H. W. Owens, C. C. Van Nugo, Ord Shoemaker and James Heaton, rendered two very pleasing selections.

Michigan's talents were well displayed by Mrs. George Van Dusen and Frank T. Plowman, who sang two duets. Mrs. James Wolfe gave three readings in a very charming manner. The last, the "Bachelor Sale," with introductory comments, winning prolonged applause.

The closing number, New York, was one of the best on the program, the audience being fairly charmed by little Miss Jeanette Houghton in her dancing songs, dressed as a gypsy. After her second number she was presented with a handsome basket of roses. An old English pantomime, cleverly acted, closed one of the most enjoyable mental banquets of the season.

The executive committee, Mr. Eaton as chairman, and the program committee, composed of officers from each state club, after two weeks hard work, feel highly gratified that their efforts were appreciated, as proven by the attendance. And well they may, having furnished one of the most varied and delightful entertainments of the season. Mrs. E. B Parker sold 303 tickets, Mrs. Margaret A. Align about 250, Mrs. Levi Copeman, 200. To the faithful work and executive ability of the committee chairman much of this success can be attributed.

It has been suggested that this be made an annual affair of the Triple Cities Tourist club to utilize some of the talent in our midst, which otherwise might be dormant during the season. The officers of the club and committee wish to thank all those who so willingly and generously assisted them in this undertaking.

Senate Leaders Would End Filibustering by Changing Cloture Rule

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Senate leaders have begun a movement to break through one of the oldest traditions of that august body—the right to talk "until the cows come home." The rules governing cloture will be amended if possible, to end the filibustering which has blocked legislation so effectively in the past. The judiciary committee of the senate has approved an amendment to the rules limiting debate on any question whenever a majority of the senate desires such limitation.

This effort to abridge the sovereign prerogative of the legislators in the upper house of congress is certain to meet with very determined opposition from members of both the Democratic and Republican parties. The minority groups will oppose this radical innovation in a vigorous manner.

The movement to limit debate arose as a result of the complaint of majority leaders in the senate that they could not get laws passed owing to lengthy speeches of members opposing the measures. The senate is far behind the house in the matter of actual accomplishment as a result of the rule under which one senator can relieve another at speech-making, thus dragging out a filibuster for several weeks.

Just now dozens of bills passed by the house are held up in the senate because senators can't find time to wear out that body in discussion upon them. Some of the administration's pet bills are included in this number.

Under the present rules it takes a two-thirds majority to declare a cloture whereby debate is limited and a vote on the question forced. Cloture, however, seldom is applied, for the minority party rarely will agree to it.

The proposed cloture rule would permit a majority vote to apply the cloture on petition of twenty-four senators. To pass the new rule requires a two-thirds majority, and therein Republican leaders find a great obstacle.

The Democratic party, ever since the memorable filibuster of John Sharp Williams in the house many years ago, prevented the South from losing what it considered the sovereign right of self-government under a proposed amendment, has been irrevocably opposed to the cloture.

Added to this opposition is that of a few Republican senators like Borah, LaFollette, Norris and one or two others, who frequently have occasion to take the floor against the entire sen-

National Guard In Charge of Boxing; Many Good Scraps

What promises to be the best bout ever seen here in Daytona is the one scheduled for tomorrow evening when Artie O'Leary, formerly of Bridgeport, Conn., meets Ralph Snyder, of Miami, in a ten-round bout for the lightweight championship of Florida. Both boys have been seen here before and put on some good exhibitions.

Snyder in the month of January fought Terry Nelson of Chicago a ten-round draw, being unable to win that bout in his usual style with a knock-out, because Nelson weighed at least fifteen pounds more than Snyder, but Ralph put up a wonderfully game fight against odds and should have earned the decision on points.

O'Leary has won every fight he has engaged in while here, getting the decision in the last bout with Young Schaffer after six rounds, and having the referee stop the fight in his bout with Joe Woods in the third round. O'Leary had Woods going so badly that it was the only thing to do to save Woods from being mauled to pieces.

In Snyder, O'Leary meets a man more his own equal, the weight being the same, experience the same and boxing ability about even. It is hard to predict a winner for this bout, but both boys are confident that it will not be necessary for the referee to decide who shall be declared the winner.

A semi-final bout of six rounds' duration has been arranged between Young Schaffer and Eddie Wallace, who brings a good reputation along with him from Chicago. Schaffer can be depended upon to give a good account of himself, and if he works as he did in his bout with O'Leary a short time ago he should win by the "kayo" route in jig time.

Another bout to be put on during the evening is that for the Triple Cities hotel championship, now being claimed by two dusky employes of local hotels. Pinkey Evans claims the title for the Hotel Morgan of Daytona while Harry Maybohm claims it for the Clarendon in Seabreeze. Both boys have had some experience in the game and it is rumored that a little personal grudge exists that will be fought out tomorrow night along with the honor of being called the colored champion. It is said that in addition to the title, the winner of this bout will earn the right to call a certain dusky belle "all mah own."

A preliminary bout will also be staged if opponents can be found. Several have been approached, but nothing definite could be learned if they would enter the contest.

The Elks' band will provide music during the evening, and a well-known singer has been engaged to sing a number of popular songs. It is the idea of the management to furnish entertainment for the entire evening, and not a dull moment shall appear. Capt. Dohm, of the National Guard, has personally taken charge of all the arrangements and guarantees all who attend their money's worth or their money back.

A big improvement has been made by moving the ring over toward the north end of the Armory next to the raised seats so that those buying reserved seats will get an excellent view of the boxers and their work. Popular prices will prevail and a big crowd is expected.

Germany Needs Billion Credit, Expert Asserts

BERLIN, Jan. 28.—Given a credit of $4,000,000,000, Germany will be able to reconstruct her commerce and industry and pay her debts to the Allies, declared the German economist Parvus in a comprehensive article published by the Vorwaerts.

Parvus, whose real name is Helphandt, is one of the best known of German economists. He was one of the economic experts of the German delegation at the peace conference of Brest-Litovsk, and was frequently sent by the kaiser's government on foreign missions.

"In order to furnish the necessary security for this loan," said Parvus, "the German state monopolies and the big business interests must organize themselves together into a mutual credit association. Such a credit association would naturally have to face severe attacks from the money lenders. Its properties and going enterprises will cover many times over the figure of the loan asked, and they would also provide for the interest payments.

How Credit Would Be Used

"The $4,000,000,000 credit should be used, before anything else, to constitute a reserve for the German payments to the Allies, in so far as they could not be met by the current revenues of the Reich. Once these payments are protected, then we could lay plans for the balancing of the budget and reform of the monetary system.

"A part of the credit should immediately go for the reconstruction of the state monopolies and private industrial plants.

"The credit for the reconstruction of the state monopolies and private industry need not all be in money. A considerable part may be constituted in goods.

"A part of the gold loan which is to protect the payments of the Allies need not be paid out at all. It can be written up on the books as a loan, but will actually be in the nature of a moratorium."

Moratorium Idea Crops Up

Instead of the $4,000,000,000 loan an Allied moratorium for the same amount would serve the purpose, in the opinion of Parvus.

"The problem would then become smaller and could be solved by simpler methods. In that case we will have to enact the mutual credit association by statute and [illegible] necessary capital for [illegible] struction as a purely [illegible] We shall arrive at the [illegible] a different road."

Elks Give Annual Charity Ball Feb. 17 at the Casino

The Elks club will hold its annual charity ball in the Casino Burgoyne the night of February 17, beginning at 9 o'clock.

The Elks charity ball is one of the big social events of the season. It always is largely attended and adds materially to the fund which the organization is accustomed to spend for charitable purposes during the year.

The price of admission to the ball will be $1 per couple and 50 cents for each additional lady. Those of the male persuasion who attend the dance without a lady will be taxed the same as if they had—one dollar, so it will be just as cheap to bring along a lady and it will be lots more fun.

The Elks are planning many novel stunts for the dance this year, but what these are is not being announced. All that anybody will say is that the affair will be up to the usual B. P. O. E. standard, and anybody who knows anything about the "Best People on Earth" should be able to draw their own conclusions.

There will be continuous music from the start of the dance until the finish. Newberry's band will be stationed at one end of the Casino while an orchestra under direction of Joe Rossi will be stationed at the other end of the hall. This orchestra will be composed of the best musical talent it is possible to assemble in the Triple Cities.

Pete Dygart has been delegated to take charge of the punch bowl, and that also is enough said about the punch.

Max Leidersdorf New Manager of the Elks' Band

S. B. Crosby, manager of the Elks' band, tendered his resignation at a meeting held in the clubhouse Friday night and Max Leidersdorf, one of the most active members of the lodge, was elected to succeed him.

Mr. Crosby has so many other duties in connection with Chamber of Commerce work that he found it impossible to devote to the band the time required. Mr. Leidersdorf, while also a very busy man, consented to take over the management of the band and already is formulating plans for making of it one of the best and most widely known musical organizations in the state of Florida.

South Ridgewood Property Being Much Beautified

Charles Foy arrived from his home in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, about two weeks ago, and is doing a considerable amount of work on his property on South Ridgewood avenue, just beyond the Blake canal. Mr. Foy has one of the most wonderful locations for a subdivision on South Ridgewood, surrounded by a beautiful natural growth of oaks and palms, facing east several hundred feet, as well as north running back toward the rail road.

Mr. Foy has been busy clearing the parkage along the front and is now erecting a very attractive bungalow on the south lot, which, when completed will be very modern and convenient.

Schulte to Build Permanent Homes For Self In Park

Henry B. Schulte, president of the H. B. Schulte Realty Co., announces the completion of plans to erect two beautiful permanent homes in Schulte Park. They will be located one on the ocean front at the eastern end of Park avenue, and the other on the river front at the western terminus of the same avenue.

This latter river front estate will have a frontage of nine hundred feet, and according to Mr. Schulte plans will be laid out in every way to present one of the most attractive residential properties in the Triple Cities.

The estimated cost of these two homes is sixty thousand dollars. The building will be of tile and stucco construction with tile roofs and everything of the most modern design.

The ocean front residence will be of Spanish type, and the one on the river front will be typical Southern in architectural design. On the river front Mr. Schulte will have erected a fine dock and house to shelter his 50-foot yacht "Harriet," which is now at McDonald's boat yard. Mr. Schulte states that the work will be started within a few days.

In addition it is planned to beautify the entrance to Park avenue on Peninsula drive with an ornamental gateway, such as is seen at the King estate, and flowers, shrubs and tropical trees will be laid out on the avenue to make it a garden spot.

Mr. Schulte's river front home is just south of the property owned by Congressman J. J. Kindred, of New York, who has just recently written of his intentions to start the building of his residence there this Spring.

Next to Congressman Kindred is the property of Senator U. S. Sherman, of Illinois. Adjoining Mr. Schulte's estate on the south is C. M. Roger's property, with a river frontage of 200 feet, and where he will erect a beautiful permanent home.

The large list of prominent people who are numbered among owners of choice home sites in Schulte Park is positive indication of the greatest future for this particular section of the peninsula. These latest building plans of Mr. Schulte and others will start a development program which will grow in momentum as other real estate values increase in all sections of the Halifax country.

The Reasons Why You Should Lend Your Hearty Support To The VOLUSIA COUNTY Y. M. C. A.

The work of the Young Men's Christian Association in theory receives the approbation of every good citizen.

In practice whenever it fails to receive endorsement, it usually is on account of poor leadership or bad management.

We in Volusia County are to be congratulated on our leadership and management. We have an outstanding leader in Mr. L. R. Reynolds and we have proper management. We are in need only of strong support of the rank and file. The cause is worthy, the workers deserving. Let us not withhold our support of purse and person, but rather each one do his full part to speed on this good work.

S. B. CROSBY,
Executive Secretary, Daytona Chamber of Commerce.

My sympathy with the aims of the Y. M. C. A. and my admiration for the work it has done and is doing are unbounded.

REV. CHARLES FREDERIC GOSS, D. D.

I believe the County Y. M. C. A. under direction of Secretary Reynolds has accomplished much toward changing the ideals among the boys of our county from sordid self gratification to that of personal service.

DR. DEAN T. SMITH,
Chairman, County Committee.

It affords me much pleasure to commend the work of the Volusia County Y. M. C. A. I believe that the work in all our schools is most helpful, and the Annual Camp at Lake Winona is one of the most helpful and constructive pieces of real character building that I know of among Christian activities. It costs money, but those of us who study it from all angles believe it to be worth all the cost.

REV. H. S. RIGHTMIRE,
Pastor, First Baptist Church, Daytona.

My observation is that those boys over whose lives the Y. M. C. A. has exercised an influence since its organization in the county are rapidly becoming leaders and the moralizing influence in our public schools. These young men present a mark of prominence in worth aspirations and high ideals. I am for the Y. M. C. A.

C. R. M. SHEPPARD,
Supt. Pub. Inst., Volusia County.

The Volusia County Y. M. C. A. has justified its existence by its work. It is doing a much needed work in the county that no other organization can do. It is worthy of all who believe in boys and the type of manhood Jesus Christ gave to the world and the kind of world such men create.

REV. W. L. LEWIS,
Pastor, Congregational Church, Daytona, Fla.

I most heartily endorse the work of the Y. M. C. A. in Volusia County under its present management.

REV. C. H. FERRAN,
DeLand.

ANTHROPOLOGICAL PROGRESS

I believe in the boys and girls of Volusia County as the men and women that shall direct the affairs of this county in the new tomorrow.

I believe with St. Paul that "whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." This principle is so axiomatic as to be almost trite.

I believe that whatsoever a boy or girl soweth, the man or woman shall reap in the great days that are coming.

We are told that Volusia County is one of the richest in the whole state of Florida. We are told that the assessed valuation, which is much less than the true value of the material resources, is approximately fifteen million dollars. We are told that the value of the undeveloped land and resources of this county is almost beyond comprehension. We view with great approval the many signs of material progress in this county. We would join heartily in every movement that stands for development and opportunity, but we do not wish the side show to get bigger than the two ring circus in the big tent.

The GREATEST RESOURCE of this COUNTY IS its BOYS and GIRLS. The greatest source of wealth in the coming twenty years is not cattle, or hogs, or turpentine, or lumber, or corn, or cane, or mellons, or cabbage, or tourists. We will give these various items much time and consideration and the news of the day will have much to say concerning these, but let us never allow our interest to be swayed from the main fact, that the DEVELOPMENT of the BOYS and GIRLS in this county, IS the PRIME CONSIDERATION in building not only a prosperous community, but an ideal citizenship. Education multiplies wealth.

Besides the public schools, which is the buttress of our democracy, there has grown up in this county a work amongst boys and girls that should receive the heartiest approval of Protestant, Catholic, Jew, Gentile or Atheist. The County Y. M. C. A., with its various activities, that has transformed the provincial conditions that have existed and made Volusia County a place where it was good for the youth to live, as well as for winter visitors; the Hi-Y clubs, the father and son banquets, the mother and daughter banquets, the summer camps, the competitive athletic meets, the girls' clubs, the competition in dressmaking, cake making, declamations, piano, voice, art, short story writing, etc., have provided activities under a wholesome influence, has developed some extraordinary talent, has created an interest among the public in the schools, has provided an acquaintance amongst the various schools, has tremendously increased individual ambitions amongst the students, and has permeated our high schools with a moral influence hitherto unknown. Indeed, next to the public school system itself, it is the most valuable institution in the county. Although organized as a Y. M. C. A., the girls have not been overlooked, and through the untiring and unrewarded energy of Mrs. Reynolds, the county girls' clubs have become a valuable county asset.

We talk of our breed of cattle, and plan for a higher strain,
We double the feed of our pasture, and heap up the measure with grain;
We draw on the wits of the nation, to better the barn and the pen;
But what are we doing, my brothers, to better the breed of men?

The Volusia County Y. M. C. A. is answering this.

(Signed) ROBERT S. HOLMES,
President Florida Forum and Assembly,
Daytona Beach, Fla.

I endorse the work of the Volusia County Y. M. C. A. and consider our Secretary a wonderful asset to the county, and to my mind the prospects for the present year are very bright.

J. B. DUNN,
Dunn Bros.' Hdwe. Co., Daytona, Fla.

It is very difficult to express in a few brief sentences my appreciation of the value of the work of the Y. M. C. A. in Volusia County.

The efforts of this organization in the direction of work among the high school students and in camp activities have been crowned with a large measure of success, and have meant very much to some who have had the whole current of life changed through these contacts.

Not only is this organization a distinct asset to Volusia County, but the strong personality, consecrated Christianity and general sweet spiritness of its most efficient secretary, L. R. Reynolds, and his wife means a great deal to every part of this county and every individual touched by their lives.

REV. D. STRATFORD SCADENG,
Pastor, First Methodist Episcopal Church, Daytona, Fla.

The Volusia County Y. M. C. A. work has my unqualified endorsement, support and especially the Camp at Lake Winona.

REV. C. E. WYATT,
Pastor, Christian Church, Daytona.

The aims and purposes of the Y. M. C. A. are Christian. Mr. Reynolds, our secretary, upholds these ideals. Under his leadership I can predict a bright future for the organization in this county.

DR. L. A. ROBINSON,
New Smyrna, Fla.

It gives me pleasure to commend the work of Mr. L. R. Reynolds as Y. M. C. A. Secretary for the County of Volusia, Florida. Mr. Reynolds is a fine Christian character. He has kept the Christian ideal before those with whom he has worked. He has been busy in and out of season, making the work committed to him a success, and has in no sense failed in attaining his purpose. He is well worth the investment.

R. W. THIOT,
Pastor, First Baptist Church, DeLand, Fla.

Although I am a comparative stranger in the vicinity, yet I have been here long enough to know something of the good work which the Y. M. C. A. is doing here. Its work all over the United States and over all the world is greatly owned of God and honored by the best of men.

REV. STUART MacARTHUR,
President Baptist World Alliance.

If this work is the means of making a good citizen of one boy who might otherwise go wrong, it is worth every cent we have put into it.

E. R. CONRAD,
President Bond Lumber Co.

The church, the school and the home must form a triangle bedrock for the civilization of today. The Y. M. C. A. of Volusia County is meeting the task of co-ordinating and harmonizing these fundamental institutions and thus deserves our best support.

B. F. EZELL,
Principal, DeLand Schools.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Here are figures showing at a glance what the former service men would get for varying periods under the proposed soldier bonus act. The figures show what he would get on the cash basis or under the four options, which include insurance, vocational training, farm or home aid and land settlement. The periods are calculated on the maximum period of service and also on the basis of one year and of six months and will serve to give the soldier an approximate idea of what is "coming to him," according to his length of service.

Most an overseas soldier could get—Cash, $958.25; other options, $1,242.25.

Most a home service soldier could get—Cash, $755; other options, $1,057.

A soldier who served one full year overseas would get—Cash, $336.25; other options, $554.74.

A soldier who served one full year at home could get—Cash, $305; other options, $427.

A soldier who served six months overseas would get—Cash, $175; other options, $245.

Mrs. Emma Kingston Home Built By L. Z. Burdick Completed

L. Z. Burdick, contractor, has about completed the construction of the Mrs. Emma Kingston home, corner of Grandview avenue and Butler boulevard, Seabreeze. In fact the building will be completed by the middle of this week and turned over to Mrs. Kingston.

This beautiful home with frontage both to the west and to the north, has a wide comfortable front porch across the entire west side, leading directly into the large living room with its attractive fireplace and mantle of red tapestry brick, with a built in book case on each side extending up to the same heighth of the mantle which forms one continuous line from the stairway on the right, to the cased opening to the left which leads into the pretty dining room.

Between the dining room and kitchen is a wonderfully arranged butler's pantry which adds a great deal to the convenience of the first floor.

To the rear of the house, opening out from the kitchen, is a screened in porch from which a large closet or store room opens, which is a very unusual feature and a very good one as well.

Four nice bed rooms each having double exposures and clothes closets are found on the second floor as well as a conveniently arranged bath room. A good sized basement equipped with furnace completes this modern home.

Will Not Get Maximum

Of course the majority of former service men would not receive the maximum amount due for either home or foreign service. The latter group includes soldiers and sailors who saw service on foreign service at the beginning of the war, mostly regulars. The "draft period" home service men would be very considerable and would be in addition to the regular army and navy men who were in the service at the time the war broke out. The national guardsmen who had not been mustered out after Mexican border duty and many who "stepped into the game" when it seemed that war was imminent.

However, even the veteran who served only one year or six months would receive amounts of tidy proportions.

If he served one year overseas he could draw $336.25 cash or $554.74 on either of the other four plans. If he served one year at home he could draw $305 in cash or $427 on one of the other four plans.

If he served six months overseas he could draw $175 cash or $245 on any of the other four plans. If he served six months at home he could draw $128 in cash or $178.20 on one of the other four plans.

'Galloper' Smith, Now Lord Birkenhead, May Succeed Lloyd George

LONDON, Jan. 29.—Just as assuredly as Lloyd George is the present prime minister of England, so Lord Birkenhead, Lord Chancellor of Great Britain, will be his successor. No body on this side of the Atlantic has the slightest doubt on the point.

Frederick Edwin Smith, now known as Lord Birkenhead, has had the most meteoric career that Britain has ever known. Never before, not even in the instance of Pitt, has a man taken the reins of government with so short a bound.

It was in February, 1906, that London first heard of this young man. There had been a Parliamentary election. The Tories, after eleven years of power, had been wiped out. Just a faded remnant had been returned to the House of Commons. The benches opposite were crowded with triumphant Liberals.

He Astonished Commons

And then, second day of the session, an unknown, immaculately dressed youth, with smooth hair and Liverpool accent, arose to address the House and the hostile legions opposite.

He had no feelings of defeat. He made no apologies. With silken voice and brutal invective he flayed the life from the victorious foe. Arthur James Balfour, leader of a hopelessly defeated party, looked around and asked: "In Heaven's name, who is this boy?"

All England next day was ringing with the name of F. E. Smith. He became familiarly known as "Galloper" Smith.

This was really the third stage in "Freddy" Smith's career. At the beginning he was the son of a very poor and unsuccessful lawyer. His ability brought him prizes, enabling him to go to a good school at Liverpool. From there he won his way to Oxford university, supporting himself all the time.

Was Leader at Oxford

At Oxford he quickly made himself the man of the day. A great football player, president of the Union, triple first class degree, this handsome boy—without a cent—dominated the ancient purlieus of the venerable city. And all the people who counted asked: "What will he become?"

For the time being he had no money to become anything. So for several years he was a famous professor and teacher. Then he went to the Bar. And one day there was a most extraordinary forgery case. The prisoner was conspicuously guilty, but the defense put up was one that drew the excited attention of all England. F. E. Smith was the defending counsel.

After that Liverpool his native city, could not make enough of him. He had the pick of all the big legal cases that happened. He lived in tremendous style in a huge house, keeping a string of hunters, entertaining in elaborate style and making the entire community wonder how he did it. His fame spread daily until men gasped.

A Hero in His Home Town

The famous judge, Lord Mersey, was in Liverpool at that time. One day, driving around, a legal friend asked him who owned a huge skyscraper just constructed.

"I don't know," said Lord Mersey, 'but I should imagine Freddy Smith is taking new offices."

The rapid ascent continued. Within two years "F. E.," as he was always known, became the third man at the English Bar. His two superiors were Rufus Isaacs, now Lord Reading, and Sir Edward Carson. He worked in the courts until 4 o'clock every day, just overwhelmed with business, at any fee he liked to charge. At 6 o'clock he was in the House of Commons. Until 4 o'clock in the morning he attended society functions, and 9 a. m. found him again at his desk, fresh as paint. His income was estimated at forty thousand pounds a year—on pre-war rates.

Took Up Ulster's Cause

He nearly threw away everything in the Ulster cause when he became "Galloper Smith," in the Orange Army, in 1914. It was touch and go whether he and Carson would not be indicted for high treason. But the war came, and these things were put aside.

Lord Birkenhead went to France in 1914 as a major in the Oxfordshire Light Infantry. He served in the trenches for nearly a twelvemonth, and then the government ordered his recall. He was needed as attorney-general. And he came back with some regret.

His extraordinary industry, rapid grasp of fact and amazing rapidity of work made him invaluable to Lloyd George. At the next reconstruction of the ministry he was made Lord Chancellor and head of the entire British judicial system, with enormous plenary powers and unqualified prestige.

He wired the fact to his wife, and the signature was, "Your impoverish-
